THE WORKING CLASSROOM

How to make school work for working-class students

Presented by Andy Griffith

Andy Griffith is the creator of the Osiris Teaching Intervention and various other high impact courses for teachers and leaders. As well as being a prolific trainer, he is the co-author of the best-selling books, Engaging Learners, Teaching Backwards and the award-winning The Learning Imperative.

This two-day programme is based around the book written by Andy Griffith and Matt Bromley, The Working Classroom.

- ☞ Practical strategies and tools to help secondary schools and colleges build cultural capital and social capital effectively
- ☞ Ensure high-quality adaptive teaching is at the heart of your organisation's pedagogy
- ☞ Auditing tools to ensure that the core curriculum values working-class culture
- ☞ Develop knowledge domains to complement Disciplinary Knowledge
- ☞ Ideas and case studies for more impactful Curriculum Interventions for low attaining students
- ☞ Ideas and case studies for more impactful Curriculum Enhancements for high attaining students
- ☞ Creative solutions to getting higher parental engagement

"Would highly recommend Andy! His work with staff on building cultural capital and improving oracy with students was fantastic. It will allow us to continue our commitment to improving outcomes and life chances for our young people."

Margaret Pollock, Senior Depute, St. Luke's High School, Barrhead, Glasgow.
